Barbeyrolles is with no doubt the most interesting vineyard of peninsula of St-Tropez. It is where Régine Sumeire initiated the first pale rosé color with its famous cuvée Pétale de Rose, back in the 80s. Since then, many followed the trend but Barbeyrolles is still the reference.

It is in Barbeyrolles, on the peninsula of St-Tropez that the first pale color rosé was born. Named Pétale de Rose by Régine Sumeire, this rosé wine, with such a refreshing minerality, keeps moving our hearts.

A very good quality rosé wine, two estates with high quality standards. The 2017 vintage features scents of crushed stone and savory spice rather than overt fruit. Light to medium-bodied, it's silky textured and long on the finish
